Affordable Art Fair

Hello, I'm Louise McNaught – I'm an artist mostly known for my really brightly-coloured animal paintings and prints. I live with my husband, my six-year old daughter Autumn and a very mischievous kitten.

I absolutely love nature and animals and always have, so when I completed my Fine Art Degree that's what I started painting and I haven't stopped since! In my paintings my animals are like the king of the world – even if I'm painting a tiny butterfly or bee, I make them look sublime. I've also got a book out called 'Survival' which has my paintings of twenty endangered animals and proceeds from sales of this book go to the charity tusk.org which funds wildlife conservation programmes across Africa.

As Autumn is off school (as most school-children are) I thought it would be a great idea to make some of the animals I've painted into colouring sheets for her. She really loves colouring them in and I hope you do too. You can either use really bright paint colours as I do, or just colour them in using your favourite pen and pencil colours. It doesn't really matter as in nature, there are wonderful animals of all shapes and sizes, shades and tones.

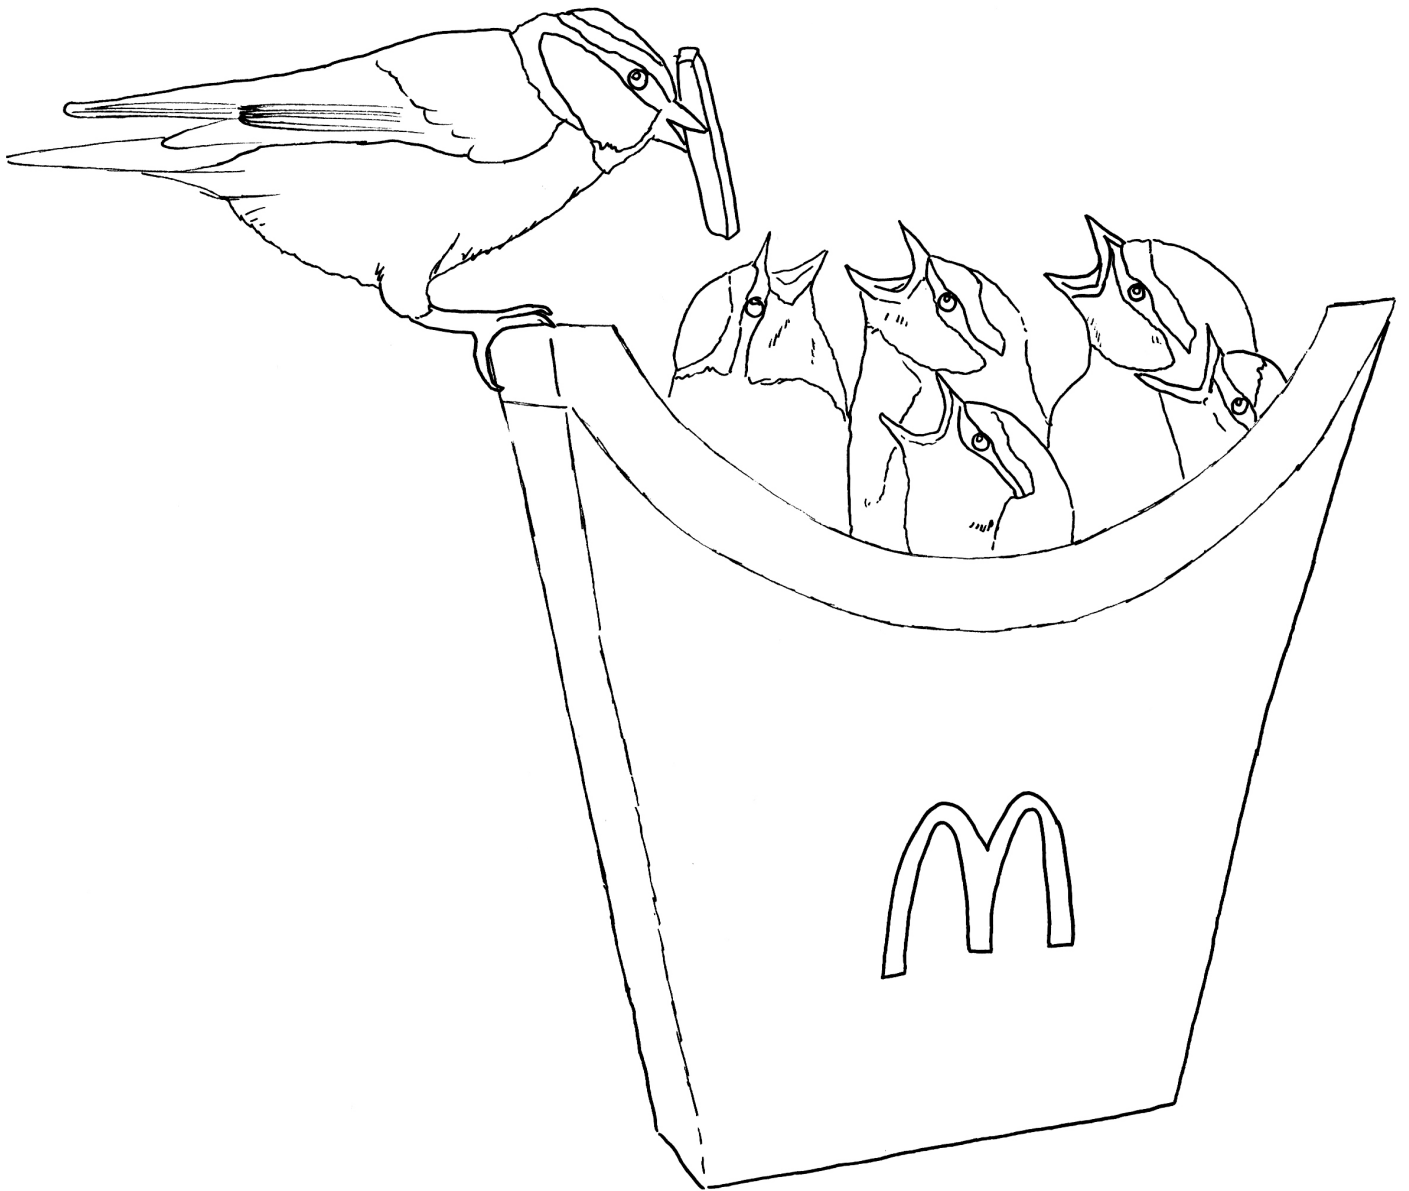

I hope you have as much fun painting animals as I do – maybe one day you'll become an animal artist too!

Here's an example of how Louise painted this drawing herself! We asked her what it was she was thinking about when she first started drawing it:

"When I created this artwork, called 'Instant Gratification', I was thinking about the effects humans have on nature, in a humorous way. The bird is feeding its fledglings and using a chip cup as its home. The birds are acting as though this is a normal part of the natural world, but we can see it is not."
